Cecile's first collection to be shown at The Art of Protest York, like much of Cecile's creativity, has an autobiographical origin. Titled, The Wake Up Ritual, this collection is born of the personal experience for trying to rediscover her mojo as an artist after a break while looking after a loved one.

Her year of being a carer had a detaching affect from her playful pink bunny headed alter ego made famous on the streets of Buenos Aires over the previous decade. The pink bunny had been a known motif within the many murals and gorilla pop up artworks in the urban art scene of Buenos Aires since the start of the millennium.

The blue headed bunny featuring in The Wake-up Ritual is the alter ego post the period of change. The emotional challenges that we all face, as life throws things at us to deal with, can never be undone. The new experience becomes part of who we are and who we were becomes a little removed. A component of this collection sees Cecile depicting her creativity as a blob that she tries to reconnect with and absorb into the changed person she is. Made up of 9 originals and a short run signed limited edition collection its a pleasure for us at The Art of Protest Gallery to share this Latin American perspective on a universal life experience.
